Deliberately distinctive

Clare Heath-Whyte lives in South London with her husband David and two grown-up children. She spends most of her time reading and writing books and helping women and children inside and outside the church find out more about Jesus. Although she loves kayaking and body boarding, living in London means she is more likely to be found watching costume dramas on TV.

21st century Britain can be quite a hostile place for Christians. The temptation is often to conform or retreat into our holy huddle.

How can we stand firm for Christ in the midst of the daily pressures we face as Christian women with colleagues, family, friends?

Daniel faced similar challenges and stood firm even in the face of hungry lions. He has valuable lessons to teach us today. Come and join us as Clare opens up the book of Daniel.
